

David Hancock Lecturer

This noted biologist, conservationist, writer and publisher is now accepting speaking engagements. An enthusiastic and dynamic lecturer, David has a fine collection of beautiful color slides that illustrate a number of current themes. These include:

- The Incredible Bald Eagle
- West Coast Wildlife
- The NW Native Art & Culture
- Tlingits: The Alaskan Indians

He frequently addresses conservation societies on the protection and creation of better bald eagle habitat. A few other pet lecture topics include The Turacos of the World, The Grouse of the World, Arctic Adventures, and An African Photo Safari.

Biography

David Hancock has spent most of his life studying west coast and arctic wildlife. He has published scientific and popular books and papers on whales, seals, seabirds, grouse and his speciality, the northern raptors. Prior to starting Hancock House Publishers he was a pilot and wildlife film producer -- again specializing in the native cultures and wildlife of the coast and north.

He recently completed a book on eagles, The Bald Eagle of Alaska, BC and Washington and another book on the northwest coast Indians, Tlingit: Their Art and Culture. As well, he has a book on the Alaska-Yukon wildflowers nearing press. Currently he is undertaking studies of the bald eagles along the northwest coast and working on a sandhill crane breeding project.

Please contact David Hancock.

Phone 800 938-1114,

Fax 800 983-2262, or

Email: David@hancockwildlife.org

Web: www.hancockhouse.com

